The Department of Visual and Dramatic Arts welcomes the full spectrum of Rice University undergraduate students. Scientists, architects, historians, engineers and economists, among many others, augment our core of arts majors to create a diverse, lively forum of artists and thinkers. We believe this composite community is a vital asset to majors and non-majors alike: art thrives in contact with new and varied perspectives, and the risk-taking and critical thinking necessary to making art are crucial in many other fields. Beyond a dynamic artistic practice, we aim to cultivate an artistic frame of mind.

Students may focus their education in one of three major concentrations: film and photography, studio art, or theatre. Courses draw on the resources of Rice's active and accomplished faculty, extensive on-campus facilities, and Houston's vibrant artistic community. The department boasts a state-of-the-art cinema, as well as a 500-seat proscenium-style theater. The Moody Center for the Arts hosts arts-related programming and mounts exhibitions by internationally acclaimed artists. Rice campus is within walking distance of the Museum of Fine Arts Houston and the Contemporary Arts Museum Houston, and a short drive from the renowned Menil Collection. Distinguished speakers, visiting artists, film series, field trips, student exhibitions and performance opportunities all contribute to an immersive arts education that extends well beyond the classroom.

Warhol's filmmaking and artmaking pursuits will be seen in the context of Hollywood glamour and street smarts, drag time and drug time, work and working it, drift and abandon. Sex and sexuality, their performance, representation as well as documentation, will remain a through line. Micro-surveys of Mario Montez's and Dorothy Dean's appearances in the films will be closely tracked. In the course, we will examine Warhol's career as a key recent shift from modernism's medium-specificity to "contemporary art" as context—a situation the films pull into sharp focus, given, as Mike Kelley wrote, the "current collapse of the historical differentiation between fine art and the entertainment industry." Graduate/Undergraduate Equivalency: ARTS 634. Warhol's filmmaking and artmaking pursuits will be seen in the context of Hollywood glamour and street smarts, drag time and drug time, work and working it, drift and abandon. Sex and sexuality, their performance, representation as well as documentation, will remain a through line. Micro-surveys of Mario Montez's and Dorothy Dean's appearances in the films will be closely tracked. In the course, we will examine Warhol's career as a key recent shift from modernism's medium-specificity to "contemporary art" as context—a situation the films pull into sharp focus, given, as Mike Kelley wrote, the "current collapse of the historical differentiation between fine art and the entertainment industry." For graduate students, the viewing journal is also necessary, but there are three additional requirements: a) a 20 to 25-page essay; b) a short presentation to the class; and c) the additional reading of Warhol's diaries. Faculty permission for graduate credit is required. Instructor Permission Required. Graduate/Undergraduate Equivalency: ARTS 434.
